USNISAVAYA HRDAYA 44 ॥ ३ ॥

This image shows a single, extremely long horizontal line of text in a traditional Indian script, possibly Devanagari, which is used for writing several languages including Sanskrit and Hindi. The text is repeated in a continuous, overlapping pattern across the entire width of the page. The characters are dark brown or black, set against a lighter, off-white background. The script is highly detailed, with each character having multiple strokes and diacritics.
